September 26th – 30th 2020

Friday 18h30 – 21h00 / The Matrix of Ashtanga Yoga

In this workshop, we first discuss the context within which the Ashtanga Vinyasa Yoga method came to be. Then we look at the essential elements that make it distinct and an extremely internal practice. The context that the practice lives in is one of recognizing our true nature. Are the elements in the practice being used to this aim?

The elements that provide the framework for the experience of Ashtanga Vinyasa Yoga are: vinyasa/breath, bandha, dristhi, and asana. It's one thing to know what these words mean, and another to have an experience of them. We will be doing small pieces of practice to illustrate the concepts that lead to an actual experience of these elements. This is primarily a lecture-based workshop and aimed at those who have an open mind and a desire to understand the Ashtanga Vinyasa Yoga system in a way that enhances whatever method of practice they choose to participate in.

Saturday 7h00, 8h15 or 9h30 / start time for Mysore Practice

In the Ashtanga Yoga Mysore Workshop, David shares techniques and tools that are specifically relevant to you and what's going on in your practice. This is where true teaching and learning happens. When guidance specific to you is aligned with your needs, growth and change naturally follow.

Note for the Mysore you will need to specify if you wish to start your practice at 7h00, 8h15 or 9h30. There will be between 12 – 14 practitioners starting each session.

Saturday 14h00 – 16h30 / Anatomy of Breath

In this workshop, David will take you on a journey through the anatomy of your breath. From the diaphragm to the abdomen, and pelvic floor. It's not as simple or limited as inhale and exhale, oh no. The breath can be used as a link between mind and body through the nervous system. Manipulation and control of the breath can have an impact on the reactivity or calmness you hold in your nervous system. We'll shift our understanding from the lungs and diaphragm and psoas as individual parts and pieces to the breathing system as a whole.

Sunday 7h00, 8h15 or 9h30 / start time for Mysore Practice

Sunday 14h00 – 16h30 / Three Anatomical Points to Effortless Practice

The core of movement in practice can be brought back to three anatomical points that direct you toward the core of the body. This workshop is about simplifying the complexity of where to practice from anatomically.

By focusing on these three anatomical points, you will develop safe and effective movement that becomes expansive and effortless. It sounds too good to be true, but this really is the basis of understanding the physical component of bandhas in your yoga practice.

Monday 7h00, 8h15 or 9h30 / start time for Mysore Practice

Monday 14h00 - 16h30 / anatomy of BACK BENDING

Students often crave deep backbends. Of course, most of us spend a lot of time sitting and therefore we know that backbending, to a degree, is extremely helpful to this pattern. At the same time, we run into resistance, back compression, or a lack of strength. In this workshop, we will first review the anatomy that is most directly related to backbending. Just so you know, it's not all about your back! Then we'll explore different techniques to see how they impact our own backbends.

Tuesday 7h00, 8h15 or 9h30 / start time for Mysore Practice

Tuesday 14h00 - 16h30 / Common Injuries and How to Work with Them

These workshops will focus on the most common injuries we find in practice. The top of the list are knees, back, and shoulders. We will also aim to create a system for understanding injuries and deconstructing them so that we can deal with the source and not just fix the symptoms.

Wednesday 7h00, 8h15 or 9h30 / start time for Mysore Practice
